Browne Leadership

Principal Keith Stephenson has dedicated his life to working with students in urban schools. His career started as an elementary school teacher in Trenton, NJ. Pursing his interest in becoming an administrator, Mr. Stephenson began working with the District of Columbia Public Schools (DCPS). During his nine years with DCPS, he served as a teacher, assistant principal and principal. He remains committed to developing communities by effectively educating children.

“DCPS has received significant resources over the last two years, enabling us to improve the quality of each and every school.
